Carbon Legion Plans Nov. 11th Service

The Carbon Legion Monday evening laid plans for its annual Remembrance Day service in the Scout hall on Saturday, November 11th. The Legion padre, Rev. J.W. Way, is in charge of arrangements. Ministers of other denominations have been asked to take part and this year Rev. J.G. Rott will give the address. The service will begin at 10:55 a.m. Particulars of parade and dedication will be announced later.

Poppy Day will be held Saturday, November 4th. Members of the Carbon Students' Union have been asked to sell the poppies and generous support would be appreciated. Proceeds from the sale of poppies and wreaths go into the Carbon Legion Veterans' Disability fund.

More work has been planned on the hall. Wednesday, October 18th was set as the work day for closing up of the windows on the east end, repairing remaining windows, boarding up of coal shed which has been detached from the hall, and banking of the building.

A letter from Dominion Command concerning books and magazines for the Special Service force and the permanent force was read and discussed. Action in this matter will be taken at a future meeting.

It was decided to again start boxing classes for school boys. Mr. W.A. Braisher has offered his services as instructor and will be assisted by Rev. J.W. Way.

The Carbon Lions Club is making preparations for its annual kiddies Hallowe'en party in the Scout hall on Tuesday, October 31st. Prizes will be given for the best costumes in a number of classes, so kids are urged to dress up for the occasion. Treats are in store for all children who come. Teachers of Carbon school are arranging a program of games and other entertainment.

A coyote hunt with shot guns only will be held in the Carbon district on Sunday afternoon, October 22nd. Hunters and others who wish to assist in the round-up will meet on the main street of Carbon at 2 p.m. sharp, when location of the hunt will be decided. All shotgun artists are urged to come.

A meeting of the Carbon Girls' Club will be held at the home of Mrs. Jack Barnes on Tuesday, October 24th, at 7:30 p.m. All members are requested to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Wes Watts and daughter, Susan, and Mrs. Gordon Regamble of Banff, and Miss Jean Cooper of Red Deer are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Cooper.

Mrs. Jack Appleyard and family arrived Friday from Edmonton and with her husband took up residence in the former Len Hay home. Mr. and Mrs. Hay are now residing in the house on the 'island' east of the Charlie Smith home.

ODD STORIES IN THE NEWS

Sylvester Sharp, of Iowa City, Ia., a University of Iowa custodian, reported to police that he had suffered the worst fate that can befall a janitor. He lost his keys.

Eighty-year-old Eli Bacon of Bainbridge, England, reported that he has just cut two new teeth.

"My doctor says they are both good ones, too," he said.

Duncan O. Cameron, of Oakville, celebrated his ninety-first birthday anniversary recently and gave friends his recipe for long life and happiness: "Never get married."

He is one of Canada's oldest practicing lawyers.

Ellen Steiner, 21-year-old stenographer, of Cleveland, O., keeps two skunks as pets. They aren't deodorized but they're well fed and kindly treated and don't give offence she says.

Farmer Roy Glanville, Superior, Wis., used the only thing he had available to put out a fire that was spreading to his barn. He doused the blaze with 10 gallons of milk.

A woman patron at a summer theatre at Hyannis, Mass., laughed so hard that her upper plate flew out, sailed past the head of a man in front of her, and landed somewhere under the seats. A search party of employees recovered the plate.

Many Regina have expressed their pleasure at the passage by burgesses of the money bylaw which will eventually give Regina a new water supply.

One of the most heart-felt, coming from a man sitting at a lunch-counter, was:

"We're going to need that water. With liquor and beer prices going up, we're going to need that water."

Irked because heavy traffic wouldn't let her by, Mrs. Jack Corley, of Tulsa, Okla., took to the air over a busy suburban thoroughfare. She asked a crane operator on a construction project to hoist her over. He swung Mrs. Corley and her market basket on the end of his cable, high above the passing cars, gently letting her down on the other side.

Plan Drive To Sell More Canadian Wheat

OTTAWA.—The government plans a drive to sell more Canadian wheat to Europe, it was learned.

Three Canadian grain experts will tour European countries, to survey their grain requirements and find out how much can be supplied by Canada.

Dr. C. F. Wilson, advisor on wheat to Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, trade minister; J. B. Lawrie, executive assistant of the Canadian wheat board, and R. W. Milner, one of the three members of the board of grain commissioners, will make the trip.

Funny and Otherwise

I happened to meet my friend, Dumb Dora, in the street, and asked her where she was going. "I'm going shopping," she told me. "I'm going to buy a mirror."

"A hand mirror?"

"Don't be silly! Who wants to look at their hands in a mirror?"

Druggist—Did you find the mothballs I sold you last spring effective in killing moths, Mary?

Mary—No. Over and over when saw a moth flying about, I tried to hit it with one of those balls. But I didn't hit one.

Teacher—What inspired the old-time pioneers to set forth in their covered wagons?

Student—Well, maybe they didn't want to wait about thirty years for a train.

Neighbor—(to little boy eating an apple)—Look out for the worms, Sonny.

Willie—When I eat an apple, the worms have to look out for themselves.

The fluttery Summer visitor approached the old sea captain smilingly:

She—You know, I've always wondered why do you sea folk always call a boat "she"?

Captain—Ever try to steer one?

Sue—You say you flunked in French? Why, I can't understand it.

Lou—Neither can I. That's why I flunked.

Seek To Pipe Oil To Toronto

CALGARY.—Canadian Delhi Oil limited applied to the Alberta Natural Gas Conservation board for a permit to export gas to eastern Canada by means of a 1,800-mile, $220,000 pipeline to Toronto.

Canadian Delhi's application is the fifth received by the board for export of gas.

The line would carry 365,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day and would serve intermediate points in Saskatchewan, Fort William, Port Arthur, and Sudbury. Spur lines would feed Sault Ste. Marie, Ottawa and Montreal.

B.C. Apples To United Kingdom Under New Agreement

OTTAWA.—A new Anglo-Canadian apple contract has been signed, under which Canada will ship $2,200,000 worth of British Columbia apples to the United Kingdom, starting early in October, official sources disclosed.

Biggest British-Canadian west-coast apple deal since 1946, the contract—made directly between the U.K. government and west-coast shippers—calls for the shipment of 1,100,000 boxes at about $2.01 a box.

Devise Defence Of Soo Locks

They Carry Vital Goods Of Peace And War

General view of the Soo locks—one of the most strategic gateways in the Western Hemisphere.

By JOHN SEMBOWER
(CPC Correspondent)

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich.—Defence precautions at the great locks of the Soo canal in Ontario and Michigan, the hub of the vast Great Lakes waterways system which handles 90 per cent. of the nation's iron ore, are being tightened as the result of what the recent army war games revealed.

That one of the U.S. army's most elaborate summer manoeuvres was staged here is indication enough of the prime importance attached to the canal in the strategic planning which views the northern perimeter of this continent as a major defence bastion.

There is an atmosphere here again that is reminiscent of World War II, when extensive defence measures were taken against direct attack by air, rather than just the safeguards against sabotage which marked World War I.

During the recent war games, a picked squad of 45 carefully trained "enemy" saboteurs made a surprise pre-dawn assault, complete with diversionary tactics and every known ruse of a sneak attack.

The army draws considerable comfort from the fact that all were repulsed, although one who was not searched was able technically to "blow up" the command headquarters later on.

The twin detachments of U.S. and Canadian troops are being increased, and an immediate repercussion of the Korean crisis was the banning of all visitors and pleasure ships, including the big lake liners, from the four vital locks on the U.S. side.

This action, taken at the same time as the closing of the Panama canal to visitors, shows how sensitive the security measures are in this area to trouble arising anywhere in the world. However, the Canadian locks which are less vital to ore shipping, remain open to civilian traffic.

Believed that no restrictions on visitors are in the present planning is Michigan's special commission which already is laying plans for observing the centennial of the Soo in 1955. Ever since the French explorers and Indians developed a brisk trade in the lakes area, the Soo has played a key role.

The Soo puts on a great show, day and night, during the shipping season. As the vital link between the great ore ranges in Lake Superior and the steel complex of Lake Michigan, Huron, and Erie, the canal is pushed to utmost capacity between April and December.

As great ship canals go, the Soo is in a class by itself. Its two arch rivals, both perhaps with more glittering reputations because of their exotic locales, the Panama and Suez canals, cannot hold a candle to it in the tonnage volume handled.

Forecasts are that in the current season, the Soo will ship more than 110,000,000 tons and that is three times greater than Suez and five times that of the Panama canal.

The biggest locks in the world are at the Soo. The Davis and Sabin locks in the north canal are 1,350 feet long and 80 feet wide. The new MacArthur lock, built during the war as a replacement for the famous old Welzel lock and named after the general, holds 21,900,000 gallons of water.

They have to be that big, for lake freighters now come king-sized. The Inland Steel's new giant ore carrier, the Wilfred Sykes, completed last year in shipyards at Lorain, O., is 678 feet long.

They need to work fast to handle the terrific demands of the rush season, because while St. Lawrence and Panama operate the year 'round, the Soo is like some of Russia's key waterways and is blocked with ice during normal years from late November to early April.

Huge valves, controlling water flowing by gravity, fill the locks in 10 to 14 minutes and empty them in nine to 11 minutes. All told, it takes a ship about an hour to clear the system which is the climax of the 63-mile shuttle from Lake Superior to Lake Huron through the St. Mary's river.

This is not the first time that the Soo has been in the military spotlight; it has always been crucial during war involving the New World. The first canal in the western hemisphere was built there in 1797, complete with a nine-foot lift on the Canadian side for large canoes.

American troops seized it in 1814, and destroyed the pioneer canal. The lineal ancestors of the present locks, however, were not built until 1855, when Michigan completed a "state canal" over vigorous local protests because it extinguished a prosperous portage operation.

Engineering-wise, the Soo is regarded as the greatest flowering of the age-old art of canal building, started by the fabulous Leonardo da Vinci at Milan in 1487. Its locks and canal works are considered the most modern in the world today.

TELLS OF EXPERIENCES

Beautiful Girl Bullfighter Retiring To Get Married

FRANCE.—Conchita Cintron, the beautiful girl bullfighter from Peru who is retiring this year to get married, wants to have lots of children, but she'll never allow any of them to become bullfighters.

"It's much too dangerous," she said at her hotel here, just after she had fought and killed two bulls at Bayonne, not far from the Spanish border.

Still dressed in Spanish cowboy costume, the classic garb for female bullfighters, 28-year-old Conchita confessed her own parents had spoiled her.

"My mother wanted me to do anything that made me happy," Conchita explained. "But my father—he's an American and a graduate of West Point—resisted to the last. He said it was too dangerous. Finally, when he saw I was set on it, he gave in."

"But when we are married, my husband and I will never spoil our children to that extent," she said emphatically.

Conchita is lovely to look at. She has a pale face, large blue eyes and jet black shoulder-length hair tied into a flat velvet bow on the nape of her neck.

Her fiance is the 33-year-old son of her Portuguese trainer, who was once the greatest bullfighter in Portugal.

"What made me start fighting bulls? That's like asking a composer why he starts composing or an artist why he paints.

"Afraid? Yes, I'm always scared to death when I enter the ring but once the fight starts it's a case of life or death. The bull is trying to kill me, so I kill the bull," she said, dipping into a box of chocolates.

"I've been badly gored twice. Last time was last year in Mexico when I had a long deep slash right down here," she said pointing to her thigh.

"But when you're in the bull ring, the excitement is so great, you don't feel pain. It's the same with the bulls."

"Cruel? I love bulls and I don't think it's cruel. At least the bulls in the ring can fight for their lives. That's more than they can do in the slaughterhouse."

"What about the horses? Only very old ones are sent into the ring and it is better they should die. They feel very little because they are heavily padded and injected with morphine."

"But don't be confused between these Spanish picador horses and those which are trained to dodge the bull in the Portuguese style of bullfighting which I practise," she emphasized.

Conchita said her own horse, a magnificent white beast which flies around the world with her, had taken six years to train.

When she stops talking about bulls Conchita is very feminine.

"I love clothes and my biggest thrill in going to Paris is that I can shop to my heart's content."

She reads a lot, loves to dance and listen to music. She is a devout Catholic.

A Hollywood film about bullfighting, starring Esther Williams, made her laugh all the way through—"it was ridiculous from start to finish."

"When I get through with bullfighting," she said, "I'm going to write a book which will be an account of my ring experience."

TRY AND STOP ME!

By BENNETT CERF

A fastidious diner objected to the way his steak had been prepared and had it sent back to the kitchen. The waiter brought it back with a message that the chef considered the steak perfectly okay in every particular. "He does, does he," bellowed the outraged diner. "You just march that steak back to the chef and tell him to ram it down his throat."

Back came the waiter with the same old steak. "I'm very sorry, sir," he reported, "but there are two steaks and four lamb chops ahead of you."

On The Side : - By E. V. Durling

In Korea, white is the color used for mourning, men keep their hats on in the house, and eggs are not sold by the dozen but by the yard. The national dish of Korea is something called kimchi. It is a mixture of cabbage, turnips, onions, dry fish, ginger and the world's hottest pepper. Incidentally, the Koreans built the first iron-clad battleship. With it they wiped out a Japanese fleet. That was in the sixteenth century.

Inventions For Housewives

A new dishwashing machine can wash all the dishes used by a family of six at one meal in 9½ minutes. Male inventors certainly have originated a number of labor-saving devices that make life easier for women. But do women appreciate this? It doesn't seem so. The females are always saying men have made a mess of the world. By the way, can you name one housekeeping labor-saving device invented by a woman?

In Theatre Tradition

The outstanding example of adhering to the theatrical saying "The show must go on" probably took place in the Collins Music Hall in London during World War II. During a period when the Germans were unusually active in bombing London, only 12 people were in attendance one night at the hall, which has been in business for over a 100 years. A bombing attack started. Eleven of the 12 in audience fled to the shelters. One man stayed on. So did the performers. Adhering to "the show must go on" idea, they gave the entire performance for that one man while bombs dropped all around the theatre.

Daughters Don't Count

Ibn Saud, king of Saudi Arabia, has 32 sons. A reporter asked an official of the court of Ibn Saud, how many daughters the king had. The official answered: "daughters are not counted".

Dog Days Are Short

All greyhounds are not racing material. In fact, few make the grade when tested as to their ability to pursue the mechanical rabbit. England and Ireland alone breed about 40,000 greyhounds annually. Very few of these reach the dog tracks. A greyhound starts racing at the age of 15 months. The average track career of a racing dog is about four years. They race about 40 times annually. When a British greyhound's track career is over the poor animal is in a tough spot. If nobody will take him as a pet he is destroyed. There is a British organization called canine defense which tries to get homes for greyhounds whose racing days are over.

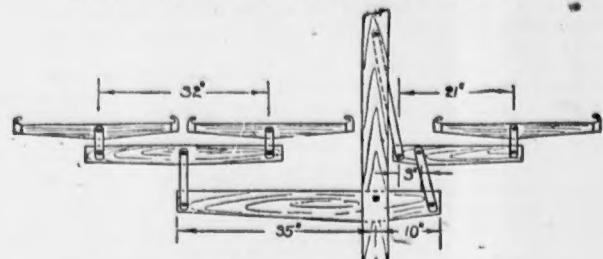

Fast Animals

Can a lion run faster than a racehorse? That's what a Brooklynite wants to know. The answer is that in a mile race, carrying equal weights, a lion would beat Citation by many lengths. However, either a cheetah or a Mongolian antelope could beat them both. If it were a four-animal race the finish would be: 1. Cheetah (just galloping). 2. Mongolian antelope (closing fast). 3. Lion (charging in the stretch with a roar and a rush). 4. Citation (racing gamely, but outclassed).

World Happenings Briefly Told

In 12 months Britain's post office handled 8,050,000,000 letters, 240,000,000 parcels and 54,000,000 telegrams.

Canada's domestic exports continue to climb. For the first eight months of this year they totalled $1,941,400,000.

Field Marshal Jan Smuts' ashes were scattered at the family monolith on a small hill behind the house on his farm at Irene, South Africa.

Sir Cecil Weir, chief executive of the dollar exports board, said Britain has reached the half-way mark in closing the dollar gap. Sir Cecil did not give figures.

The bureau of statistics estimated that Canada's population reached 13,871,000 at July 1 for a gain of 143,000 over the Jan. 1 total of 13,728,000. At July 1 last year, it was 13,579,000.

This hand from match play shows the value of the early limit bid. In both rooms East bid One Spade and South Two Hearts. Since East had not opened with a prepared bid, it was likely that he had five Spades, so West in Room 1 gave a single raise. North bid Three Hearts and East bid Four Spades, making 11 tricks after the lead of ♠K for a score of 650.

In Room 2 West bid Three Clubs over South's Two Hearts; East feared a misfit and doubled North's Three Heart bid. West elected to let the double stand and led ♠K. South lost two Clubs, a Club ruff, a Spade and two Diamonds, showing a loss of 300 points only. By launching into a new suit at the Three level, West gave himself a problem on the next round.

Where They All Know Wheat, Talk Wheat

(By A. S. in Ottawa Journal)

TO the man in the street in Ottawa, wheat is the stuff from which flour and bread are made; wheat sheaves make handsome decorations for harvest and Thanksgiving festivals. Even to the farmer in Carleton, Russell or Renfrew counties, wheat is just another grain, with oats, barley and corn. But out here in the centre of the Great Regina Plain it is the axis on which the prairie world spins, the lifeblood of commerce and industry, the subject of nine out of ten conversations at every gathering.

With combines by the thousand lumbering over the great flat stretches all around this city, picking up the grain, threshing it, and pouring it into waiting trucks to take to the elevators, man, woman and child eats, sleeps and dreams wheat.

With King Wheat tottering under the blows of early frosts and rain, no one here today gives serious thought for very long to the fighting in Korea, the defence of Europe, the jockeying for position at the United Nations, or even the standing in Big League football. Each and every one of them is nothing but a sideshow until the crop is garnered in and paid for at the tall angular elevators.

Then and only then does the talk of this city and area turn to other matters.

It is no small thing for a farmer to see 33 per cent. of his expected year's income go down the drain before his eyes. Hence, long are the faces and bitter the complaints from horizon to horizon around this Queen City of the Plains.

Yet despite these long faces, wallets of most of them will be well padded with currency within the next few weeks. For although the grade of their wheat has been slashed, the yield is one of the highest in years. Hence instead of getting $1.50 a bushel for wheat running at 10 bushels to the acre as it did in many places last year, they will get 90 cents a bushel in 1950 on a crop that runs about 22 bushels to the acre.

As one large-scale wheat operator on the outskirts of Regina remarked:

"My crop is grading way low this year. It's a failure, but I'll make money out of it just the same!"

Whether East or West, farmers will never—or rarely ever—admit to having a good year, a good crop or making money. But out here, with all the wheat marketed by the Dominion Government through the Wheat Board, they at least have the assurance that they will get paid at the prevailing prices for every bushel laid down at the railway tracks. What happens after that is not their individual concern.

It may well be that thousands of tons of Western frost-nipped wheat will land up a few months hence in Asia. Lower grade wheat is said to be the ideal thing to supplement the Asiatic diet of rice, and shiploads may yet be sent to Japan, other Asiatic countries, or even Communist China itself.

The government is pledged both by its own promises and its commitments under UN to give aid to the so-called "under-developed" countries. One of the first forms of that aid to under-developed, over-populated and hungry nations may consist of hundreds of thousands of tons of surplus wheat, now on its journey from prairie fields to lakehead and ocean ports.

KITCHEN MEDITATIONS FOOD FOR DINNER

By JANE DALE

I looked around my basement to see what I could use to cook up for the noontime meal; there was so much to choose. I gathered a dozen potatoes from the bulging bin by the wall, and a bunch of fresh crisp carrots, then some pickles I made last fall. There was an onion to season the meat stew, and from my fruit's rich store I chose a jar of apple jam—what family could wish for more?

I thought as I peeled the potatoes and stirred the savory stew of the news that I read in the papers—it had touched me through and through. Girls were being sold off in China so their parents could buy daily rice to keep body and soul together or they starved. Oh, what price? Then the world's thousands of children, homeless, unguided, unfed; existing in ruins and in cellars, their parents and guardians dead.

Oh, that there could be a true balance; that this land with its abundant fare could send out a portion daily to hungry souls everywhere. Then folks like myself could gather good food from cupboard and bin, and happily cook a rich dinner and call all the family in!

Helpful Hints

Don't press creases in table cloths. It causes a good deal of wear. Just fold the cloths gently and change the fold next time you launder them.

How can I prepare stuffed dates? Remove the stones from the dates and place blanched almonds in their place. Dip into the white of an egg, then roll in granulated sugar or coconut. Serve with glazed fruit.

To make a broom last longer, dip it in hot soapy water or hot salt water about once a week. Always hang it up to prevent the broom head from spreading and losing shape.

Air your pillows each day by removing them from their cases and fluffing them. This forces air in, dust out.

Doukhobors Of B.C. Have New Leader

KRESTOVA, B.C. — Stefan S. Sarokin, a displaced divinity student from Germany, was reported to be the new leader of the Radical Sons of Freedom Doukhobors.

Reports of Sarokin's selection followed the return of the first group of sect members released from prison after serving about four months of their sentences for nude parading last spring.

Another group of 60 of the 395 sentenced to prison terms was due in this Doukhobor capital, amid the fire-blackened ruins they created in their uprisings last spring.

Officials said all of the jailed Doukhobors would be cleared from Okalla Prison Farm, B.C. Penitentiary, and a temporary jail at Grand Forks, in a few days.

They had been given sentences up to three years, but were reprieved by Federal Justice Minister Stuart Garrison.

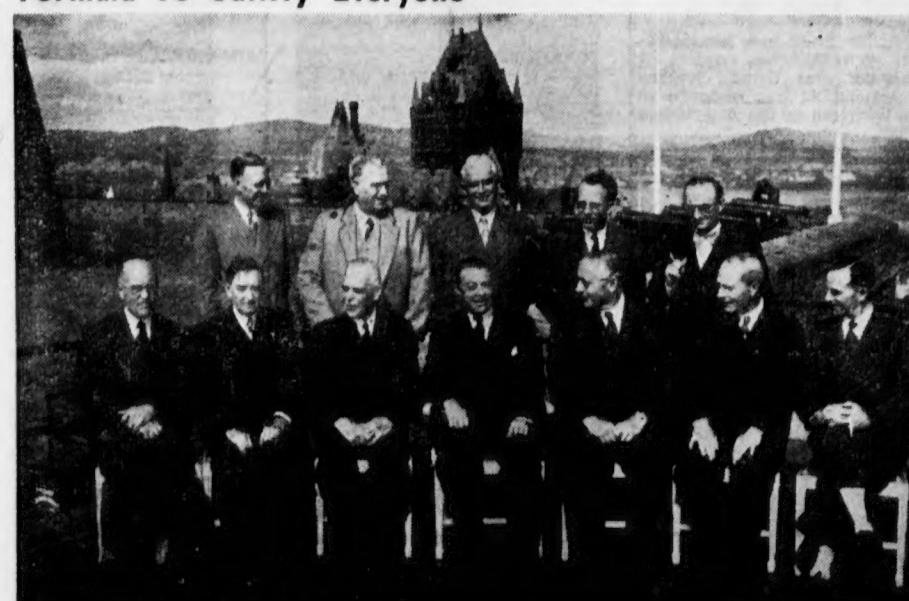

The new leader of the Freedomites had tried unsuccessfully to quieten sect members during their firing and stripping escapades last spring. Sarokin, a red-headed, robust man, was attacked and an attempt was made to strip him during the fanatical religious demonstrations.

Sect members said that with Sarokin their leader, "there will be peace." He would replace the Veregin dynasty which had guided the strange Russian religious sect since it came to Canada 50 years ago.

Sarokin was not immediately available for comment.

Easterner Describes Westerners As Living In The Sky

(By Forbes Rhude, Canadian Press Business Editor)

On the prairies you live in the sky. That is the best description this writer has heard of the peculiar fascination of the land of broad horizons. It was given by Robert M. Campbell of Toronto, a delegate on the recent trip west of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. He got it from an artist, a chance train acquaintance some time ago.

Said the artist in effect:

Take the train window as a frame, and if you look out in mountain country you see three-quarters earth and one-quarter sky; look out in ordinary country and you have half-earth and half-sky; but look out on the prairies and you have less than one-quarter earth; virtually you are in the sky.

Prairie people, whether or not they put it in these words, are very conscious of it.

Their crops raise their heads into it. Sometimes it is kind; and then, almost in a twinkling, it may breathe frost, lightly taking from farmers millions of the dollars it has just given them. It may give soft airs or searing heat—hail, wind, tornado. In the despite caprice, it gives great wealth.

Perhaps it is living in the sky that gives the westerner his traditional open, hearty manner.

There are a lot of other things about the west that draw one without one's knowing exactly why. In the years that this writer used occasionally to travel between Vancouver and the east, we never passed the station at Saskatoon, for instance, without wanting to get off.

—Saskatoon

Finally, we managed it twice, but without quite satisfying the yen just to walk around those broad, orderly streets; not to mention discovering that it is a city of bridges as it straddles the Saskatchewan river, or seeing its great, relatively-new University of Saskatchewan.

The larger western cities—Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton—have their own fascinations; but, to one from the east, perhaps the smaller cities (though they're getting pretty big now) appear more like what one considers typically west: say Saskatoon and Lethbridge; and probably many another such as Regina, Moose Jaw, Prince Albert, Medicine Hat or Brandon, if one knows them.

In case there is too much sentiment in this, here is a yarn without sentiment.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

COMPANIONSHIP

A good man is the best friend, and therefore soonest to be chosen, longer to be retained; and, indeed, never to be parted with.—Jeremy Taylor.

Kindred tastes, motives, and aspirations are necessary to the formation of a happy and permanent companionship.—Mary Baker Eddy.

What is companionship where nothing that improves the intellect is communicated, and where the larger heart contracts itself to the model and dimensions of the smaller?—Landor.

No man can possibly improve in any company for which he has not respect enough to be under some degree of restraint.—Lord Chesterfield.

ment, but with a pang of some kind: On a long trans-country trip one talks to many people and sees many places.

Finally, however, we came to a small and remote community and had barely time to walk along its main street.

On a sort of public bulletin board was a notice from the district nurse saying the railway had repaired the hospital boilers and the hospital would not be closed as scheduled—but its continuance, it was indicated, would depend on more community co-operation.

Alongside it was another notice calling upon citizens to meet on a certain date to discuss establishment of an ice rink. It appealed: "Mothers, do you want a place for your children to skate?" Beneath the rousing summons was a pencilled note:

"Postponed because of lack of interest."

I called it the "town that just didn't give a darn," and somehow had a perverse admiration for it as perhaps the only place in the country that seemed not concerned about past, present or future.

But that may be a visitor's quick impression, and possibly unfair; or the sky, and it's not a western one, may be nearly always unkind there.

Smile Of The Week

THAT'LL HOLD HIM

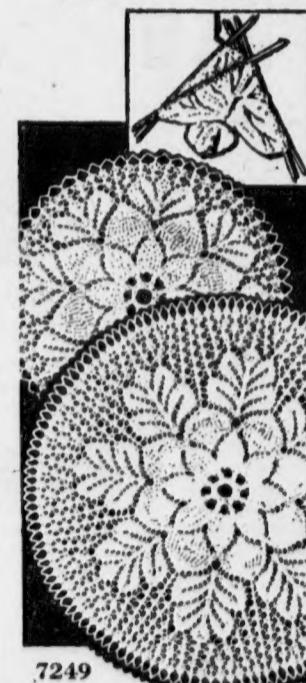

A young student from an agricultural college was in conversation with an old farmer.

"Do you know," said he "your methods of cultivation are a hundred years behind the times? Why, I'd be surprised if you made $50 out of the oats in that field."

"So would I," replied the farmer; "it's barley."

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—LOVE AT SILVER CREEK

By ANNA E. WILSON

She Was In The Same
World As Angela.

SILVER CREEK should have been a stretch of tranquil water flowing through a forest of white birch, but it wasn't. Silver Creek was a frozen black demon that slipped from under Chris Bailey's feet and flopped her into a snowdrift.

Phil Rand pulled her up and slapped her. "Keep going!"

Only Phil's arm kept her moving. Too numb to think, she saw a star moving. She tried to hold it steady but it winked at her. She laughed a small, crazy laugh. Phil shook her. Phil would never be done shaking her. Phil didn't seem to hear when she repeated in a frozen whisper, "Look, Phil, it's Jim's cabin."

It was in Jim's cabin that she first met Phil. Jim had flown her in and deposited her on Fay's couch. Fay was as lovely as ever. She'd lain there, warm and snug, until Phil blew in, bringing a breath from the Arctic. He looked down and spotted a small face scarcely visible in the firelight. "Hello, youngster!"

He'd put her in her place as Jim's kid sister. She was twenty, she told herself rebelliously, and no man as good looking as Phil had a right to treat her like that.

Phil blew out and Jim studied her. Her face looked even more pinched. "Trouble is, Sis, you've been working down in that plant so long that the strength's drained out of you."

Chris snuggled into the blankets. "It's grand to be with you now, but doing nothing makes me feel frightened."

Jim laughed. "You'll feel like moving about more in a week or two and then Phil will keep you on the go. He's got a pair of extra skis and will welcome help with his camera. Nothing like fresh air and the smell of cedar to build up that chest of yours."

The air was clean as a diamond and chiselled your face into a mask. Phil put skis on her and in her parka and fur pants she felt like Jim's brother—with a difference. The difference was Phil.

Jim and Phil had been camped out to study wild life under Arctic conditions. They piloted their plane in turn for supplies. After Jim's last flight out, he surveyed his sister critically. "The ribbon in the hair looks cute and the roses in the cheeks aren't from the firelight." After that he looked thoughtful and the next day remarked casually to Phil, "See you had a letter from Angela. From another college town, I take it."

Phil nodded. "Angela's taking up post-graduate work in science. Looks for a job with a foundation later."

"A job with Cass Macklin more likely. You've been mooning about Angela ever since school days. Angela went to college when you went into the air force, but even after you came home, she went on moving from college to college gathering degrees like a bear after blueberries. I notice, however, that Angela's tracks about the country follow closely in the wake of Cass Macklin."

Chris didn't dare look at Phil. Her cheeks burned and it wasn't from the firelight. The trouble with Phil was that he didn't know there were other girls around—or, at least, one girl.

He hadn't discovered it when he
